Summer 2009

Application Deadline:
April 6, 2009

Program Dates:
June 22–August 28, 2009

The SURF-IT Program at the University of California, Irvine provides undergraduates with a unique 10-week summer opportunity that allows them to become fully immersed in cutting-edge information technology research. Program participants use state-of-the-art equipment and facilities as they conduct research under the guidance of faculty members associated with the California Institute for Telecommunications and Information Technology (Calit2).

Benefits Include:

- $3,500 stipend
- Faculty-led seminars
- Faculty mentoring
- Career experience

Who Should Apply?

Applicants should be high-achieving undergraduates, in any discipline, with a strong drive to pursue multidisciplinary research in information technology. Applicants must have completed at least one quarter of research under the guidance of a faculty mentor prior to the start of the program, have at least junior standing, and be a continuing student after the program.
